

BURKE BACK HOME

Former Councilman to Start Life Anew.

TELLS STORY OF DOWNFALL.

Gives Name of Convict Who Blackmailed Him—As Youngster He Acted as Stall For Gang of Pickpockets in New York.

Philadelphia, Aug. 27.—William J. Burke, Philadelphia's reform councilman, who disappeared on Aug. 16, after writing a confession that he is an ex-convict and second story worker and resigning from council, returned to the city and became reconciled to his wife and stepdaughter, who have been loyal to him through his trouble.

After greeting his family at 2020 East Tioga street, Burke immediately went to the home of John L. Fehr, the local business man who offered to set him up in the cigar business provided he would come back and face the music. Today Burke will take charge of a cigar store and barber shop at 1315 Race street.

Following his talk with Mr. Fehr, who insisted that the councilman, whose resignation has not been accepted, tell the entire story of his downfall and the exposure of his old record, Burke repeated it substantially as it has been printed many times, but he gave one essential detail. He gave the name of the former convict who blackmailed him and drove him from his respected position as a reform councilman to a back room in a lodging house on West Thirty-sixth street, New York, where he has been hiding since his disappearance.

"When I first made my confession," Burke said, "certain people declared I was lying—that I was seeking notoriety. One newspaper suppressed the name of the convict who blackmailed me. The other newspapers did not have it. The ex-convict who blackmailed me was Jimmy Foley, a man who has known me for twenty-five years. We worked alongside of each other in the harness shop at Charles town prison. When I was a youngster in New York he was a 'stall' for a gang of pickpockets. Later he went west and came east, landing in Charles town. He got every cent I had, and after I made my confession he left Philadelphia. Now he is in New York probably trying to blackmail some poor fellow who has tried to forget a prison past. He is sixty-seven years old and has been a crook all his life. Foley never will blackmail me again, and from now on I fight the battle of life, no matter what people may say."

RELEASE MRS. CARTLEDGE.

Suspend Sentence of Woman Charged With Throwing Vitriol at Girl.
York, Pa., Aug. 27.—The court here released Mrs. Mildred Cartledge of Lowell, Mass., without hesitancy and suspended sentence after hearing evidence in the case which charged the woman with throwing vitriol in the face of Cora Krout, a pretty young girl, whom the woman charged with being too intimate with her husband.
The affair occurred on July 15, 1907. After the woman threw the vitriol she eluded the officers by escaping to Lowell, where she has since lived, until located a few weeks ago and brought back for trial.
The action of the court seems to have been commended by the general public.

POSTOFFICE TO BE CLOSED SUNDAYS.

Postmaster M. B. Allen has received notice from C. P. Grandfield, first assistant Postmaster General, that there will be no more delivery of mail here on Sundays as heretofore. A section of the law was given, part of which follows:
"Sir:—The postoffice appropriation act for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1913, provides: 'That hereafter postoffices of the first and second classes shall not be open Sundays for the purpose of delivering mail to the general public, but this provision shall not prevent the prompt delivery of special delivery mail.'
'Under the law you will close the general delivery, carriers' windows and lock boxes and discontinue the deliveries by carriers on Sunday. You will note, however, that special delivery mail is excepted and you will therefore arrange to have on duty a sufficient force to handle this mail matter promptly.'
'The department desires to reduce the Sunday work to the minimum so that as many of the employes as possible may enjoy a complete day of rest on Sunday. You should therefore require only a sufficient number of clerks to report for duty on that day in order that transit mail and the mail collected for dispatch may be handled without delay. If no mail is dispatched on Sunday a very early collection should be made on Monday morning and the mail for local delivery distributed before the carriers leave for their first trip.'
'Respectfully,
'C. P. Grandfield,
'First Assistant Postmaster General'
